ROBERT J. SCHMERTZ
Chairman of the Board

As Chairman of the Board, chief executive officer and founder of Leisure Technology Corp., Robert J. Schmertz stands preeminent in the field of construction of retirement homes on the eastern seaboard and his ownership of the Boston Celtics and majority ownership of the New England Whalers has brought him to national prominence in sports as well.

Beginning in 1969 Leisure Technology Corp. grew from a regional company to one that is national in scope under the direction of Mr. Schmertz. In Ocean County, N.J., it has been estimated that one out of every seven people reside in a home constructed by Mr. Schmertz.

Some 1,500 people have retired to Leisure Village on Long Island and over 1,000 reside at LeisureTowne, a Burlington County retirement community in New Jersey.

Similar communities have been opened and are being further developed in the Metropolitan Chicago area, the Metropolitan Los Angeles area and the West Coast of Florida.

Mr. Schmertz and his companies have received numerous awards for both marketing and construction excellence from Look, McCalls and Better Homes and Gardens and other national magazines and from the National Association of Home Builders among other organizations.

No stranger to sports, Mr. Schmertz was a fine amateur athlete, and is an avid, low handicap golfer.

Mr. Schmertz has made a firm commitment to Boston sports through the stability and prosperity of the Celtics and his dedication to realizing a new sports arena for Boston.

A young and dynamic man, Mr. Schmertz announced his pledge for the Celtics immediately after acquiring the 11-time world champions. "Boston and the Celtics are synonymous and always will be. In Red Auerbach and Tommy Heinsohn we have the leadership to return the Celtics to the very pinnacle of the National Basketball Association."

ARNOLD "RED" AUERBACH
President - General Manager

Red Auerbach, basketball's most successful coach and now President and General Manager of the Boston Celtics has reached the pinnacle of his profession as his honored status among the immortals in the Basketball Hall of Fame will attest.

As a coach he stood without peer in basketball on any level. He won more games (1,037), caused more controversy, earned more fans and created more top-flight basketball than any other man in the game.

Now as an off-court executive, Red still keeps his hand in with frequent clinics throughout the country and the world. His most recent trip under the auspices of the U.S. State Department took him to the Far East with John Havlicek.

Phenomenally successful, Auerbach is also phenomenally well-known. His first book, Basketball for the Player, the Fan and the Coach, has been translated into every major language and has been up-dated and reprinted.

His most recent literary endeavor, an autobiography written with Paul Sann of the New York Post, is entitled Winning The Hard Way and has enjoyed a brisk sale throughout the country. Like Auerbach, it pulls no punches and avoids no controversies.

Red is a native of Brooklyn and a graduate of George Washington University. He received a Master of Arts degree in education there in 1941. He served in the Navy for 3½ years and then joined the N.B.A. with Mike Uline's Washington Capitols and went from the Caps to the Tri-Cities Blackhawks owned by Ben Kerner. He stayed a year at Tri-Cities and then came to Boston where he took the league's weakest sister and turned her into a tiger that, after 1956, compiled the greatest record of any team in any sport.

Among his many accolades are the Boston Medal presented by Mayor John F. Collins at the dedication of the War Memorial Auditorium in 1964 and the N.B.A. Coach of the Year citation in 1964-65.

Red makes his year-'round home in Washington, D.C., where he lives with his wife, the former Dorothy Lewis. They have two daughters Nancy and Randy.

THOMAS W. HEINSOHN
Coach

Any references to Tommy Heinsohn as anything other than the man in charge of the on-the-court fortunes of the Boston Celtics are now very definitely a thing of the past.

It took the volatile Heinsohn three years to impress his personality and philosophy on the Red Auerbach-molded Boston Celtics, but his overwhelming selection as N.B.A. Coach of the Year in 1972-73 heralds his emergence as one of the premier basketball mentors in the world.

The first two seasons were difficult as Heinsohn rebuilt a once proud championship team. In 1971-72 he won the Atlantic Division in convincing fashion and in 1972-73 his Celtics attained the second best record in NBA history, an unmatched achievement in basketball reconstruction.

Heinsohn's coaching impact has been significant, his teams highly motivated and fully exploiting their physical potential in a running, hustling style of basketball.

Heinsohn is still well known as a player in the NBA despite the fact that he ended his active career at the close of the 1964-65 season. The reason for this is simple enough. As a player Heinsohn was one of the most proficient and spectacular offensive performers in NBA history.

Tom joined the Celtics in 1956 fresh from a great career at Holy Cross and it was his impetus that brought the Celtics off and running that season, a month before Bill Russell joined the club following the Olympic Games.

Heinsohn's fabulous rookie season (1163 points for a 16.3 average) earned him Rookie of the Year honors.

Thereafter his exploits became legend. He belted home 12,194 points with his line-drive jump shots and driving hooks during a nine year NBA career that saw him earn frequent All-Star and All-NBA recognition.

Tom was Boston's top scorer for three seasons and his 1742 points in 1961-62 set a Celtics record.

One of the game's great offensive rebounders, Heinsohn has been called one of the greatest clutch players of all time.

Since his retirement from active competition, Heinsohn has become a most successful insurance executive and was a very popular telecaster of Celtics games.

A native of New Jersey, Tom now makes his home in Natick with his wife Diane and sons David, Paul and daughter Donna Marie.

JOHN HAVLICEK

Born — April 8, 1940
Birthplace — Martins Ferry, Ohio
High School — Bridgeport (Ohio) H.S.
College — Ohio State '62
Height — Six feet, five inches
Weight — 205 pounds
Home — Columbus, Ohio
Years Pro — 11 years

He was ten feet tall all season long and growing when the Havlicek right shouder was knocked loose in the fourth play-off game of the Eastern Championship. Even then Hondo led the Green to a pair of victories lefthanded. The accident probably cost the young Celts the World Championship. 1972-73 was another brilliant triumph for the Boston captain. He played 3,367 minutes in 80 games — a fraction better than 42 minutes a game . . . his 23.8 ppg topped the team in scoring and was good enough for 11th place in the N.B.A. scoring lists . . . assistwise, he was 7th in the league with 6.6 per game. His 567 rebounds was third to Dave Cowens and Paul Silas . . . all this at the age of 33 . . . in the honors department, John once more was named to the All League team, polling the second largest number of votes. Once more, too, he was chosen to the All League Defensive team. At the Chicago All Star game, he played for the East in his 8th consecutive game . . . John plays the All Star game as he does league and play-off games — all out . . . again this year Havlicek won a nail nibbler by last second heroics . . . with two seconds to go against Baltimore, he hit a crazy turn-around jumper to send the Bullets home talking to themselves and no one in Boston blamed them.

Aside from taking on the Knicks one-handed in the play-offs, Hondo's other brilliant effort came in the very first play-off game against Atlanta when he caged 54 points — the record for the Celtics in a starspangled career that reaches back to 1946 . . . he hit 24 for 36 from the floor and was perfect from the line in six tries . . . in addition he picked up six assists and nine rebounds. Without question the best all-around game any Celtic ever turned in . . . against the Hawks he averaged 29.7, as the Green prevailed in six . . . he was averaging 25.6 against the Knicks until his injury . . . during the regular season, Havlicek's tops for the season was a 37 point effort against Detroit in Boston. Twice during the year he had 14 field goals and once he poured 13 foul shots in as many attempts . . . against the Braves at Buffalo he had 12 assists twice. He fouled out of one game during the year . . . of all the great Celtics, John carried the best per game average — 28.9 during the 1970-71 season . . . when he caged 2,338 points — also the highest in the team's history . . . with 19,100 points John is the highest scorer in Celtic history, climbing over ex-team mate, Bailey Howell this past year . . . he now rates ninth in N.B.A. scoring . . . Havlicek was the team's first draft choice in 1962 out of Ohio State. Despite not having played college football, he was drafted by the Cleveland Browns as an offensive end . . .

The Havliceks had a great year off the court, too. To Beth and John was born a young daughter — Jill Rene Havlicek — their second. The first, of course, was a boy — Chris — now two years old. Last year, too, the Havliceks bought a home in their on-season town, Melrose, Mass. . . . They reside in Columbus, Ohio during the summer months.

DAVE COWENS

Born — October 25, 1948
Birthplace — Newport, Kentucky
High School — Newport Catholic
College — Florida State '70
Height — Six feet, nine inches
Weight — 230 pounds
Home — Newport, Ky.
Years Pro — 3 years

Even when his fellow mates named Dave Cowens "Rookie of the Year", in 1970, there were those who claimed Boston would never win a title with a midget (6 ft. 9 in.) pivot. Now, two years later, the red-headed kid from Florida State is the M.V.P. of the N.B.A. . . . in two short years, he proved he could play the likes of Wilt, Jabbar, Reed and Lanier even up. He overpowers the guys his own size and he outslicks the monsters from outside and with quick drives to the hoop . . . when the word was that Cowens was too small, he deadpanned the prophets, "anyone that plays center for this team will have to go through me for the job." No one has filed a claim since the Celts made Cowens their No. 1 draft in 1969 . . . since entering the league, Dave has averaged 17.0 (1970), 18.9 (1971) and 20.5 (1972-73). Steady progress offensively, but where he used to do his scoring with short hooks and stuffs, now he stands back there and pops from 15 to 20 feet . . . career highs for Dave were numerous last season . . . on December 26th at Boston (vs. N.Y.) he netted 38 points, scoring 17 field goals . . . October 10th at Atlanta, a free throw high 11 (for 11) . . . on the boards he reached his peak against Houston (at Providence, R.I.) grabbing 32 caroms . . . in play-offs, Dave shows no tight sneakers . . . against Atlanta, he averaged 19.0 ppg. and got 19.5 rebounds a game . . . in the Eastern finals with New York . . . he averaged 24.4 ppg. and had 14.1 rebounds a game . . . he was named to the second All League team . . . "I believe in fundamentals, defense and aggressiveness," Cowens says . . . "I'm the captain of the defense — I call the switches, the blocks, and in the final showdown I stop 'em or they have a lay-up . . . I believe my job to be a team man and bring out the best points of my teammates.

He is single, makes his home in Weston, Mass. during the season . . . at Newport, Kentucky in the off season. He has an AB in Criminology . . . spent a year at I.T.T. studying auto mechanics . . . may be a cattle rancher by the time the season opens.

JO JO WHITE

Born — November 16, 1946
Birthplace — St. Louis, Missouri
High School — McKinley of St. Louis
College — University of Kansas
Height — Six feet, three inches
Weight — 195 pounds
Home — Topeka, Kansas
Years Pro — 4 years

One look at Jo Jo White as a collegian and you can see why he was the Celts No. 1 draft in 1969 . . . another look and you can see why he is being hailed as a superstar in the N.B.A. . . . as an amateur he won All American honors at the University of Kansas . . . was one of the top players for Uncle Sam at the Mexico City Olympic Games . . . played in the World University Games at Tokyo and the Pan American Games in Winnipeg . . . was chosen All Big Eight in the Holiday Tournament . . . and named to the N.I.T. All Tournament team in 1968 . . . as a professional he's made the All Star Game twice in three years and is rated by most players and coaches as the equal of Walt Frazier in the N.B.A. . . . aside from his first year when he came to the scene late, White has averaged around 20 ppg in the regular season . . . last year in the two hot play-off series with Atlanta and New York, he averaged 24.5 a game . . . there's no choke in White. He's always ready to take the final shot, but also admits that he looks for Johnny Havlicek, if he hasn't got it himself. He became the complete player in the 1972-73 campaign . . . scoring, defensing, passing, running . . . Jo Jo did it all . . . some felt he couldn't shoot when he was drafted . . . maybe because at Kansas he brought the ball up and got it into the big guy . . . Red Auerbach thinks he's the best pure shooter the Celtics have had since Sam Jones ruled the offensive boards . . . the name White appeared often in the Celtics records this year. . . . He had his high, 38 points, this year against the Sixers February 4th . . . on the same night he caged 17 field goals — a new high — Most Assists for Jo Jo came vs. Baltimore when he picked up thirteen . . . he went out on fouls just twice in 82 games.

The Whites spend the summer in Lawrence, Kansas — the season at Melrose, Massachusetts. This past spring a third White put in his appearance — Brian Joseph.

DON NELSON

Born — May 15, 1940
Birthplace — Muskegon, Michigan
High School — Rock Island, Ill. High
College — Iowa '62
Height — Six feet, six inches
Weight — 210 pounds
Home — Natick, Mass.
Years Pro — 11 years

Starting his 11th year of professional basketball, Don Nelson may or may not be the Celts sixth man this year. A year ago, he started in that capacity but wound up in a starting role whenever John Havlicek or Paul Silas were injured . . . as a sixth man on the team he followed the likes of Frank Ramsey and John Havlicek . . . such a role has always been important in the Celtics system of play . . . Nellie moved into the Celtic picture in the middle of the 1965-66 season when he was taken from the L.A. Lakers after all teams had passed waivers on him. He immediately became a prominent figure as the Celtics won another World Championship . . . in 1969, it was Don's last second shot that won the Championship in the seventh game at Los Angeles Forum . . . the same team that gave up on him the year before.

His best season in Boston offensively was 1969-70 when he averaged 15.4 . . . he is now in his 8th year with the Green . . . he was one of the five college players named to the Chicago Zephyrs in 1962 and he was traded the following year to the Lakers . . . as a collegian, he broke all of the scoring records at Iowa. He sat out most of his L.A. career, but with Boston in his first year he averaged 20 minutes a game, scoring 10.2 per game and pulled down 403 rebounds. Since then he has averaged in double figures in all but his second season. He has three times led the club in field goal percentage. Don's .501 percentage in 1969-70 is the second best in Celtic history. He had a long consecutive game streak broken last year when he injured his right ankle at Los Angeles in the middle of the season after 465 in a row . . . the injury kept him sidelined for two weeks and it wasn't until the approach of the play-offs that he regained his timing and physical condition . . . no speedball, Don knows how to play the game . . . gets good position for both offensive and defensive rebounds and is one of the sharpshooters of the team . . . he is especially dangerous under the other guy's hoop when he has the ball. His head fakes bring him more three-point plays than anyone on the team . . . his high for last season was 30 points at Cleveland, February 6 . . . career high in 1970 was 40 points . . . hobbled by injury last year, he nevertheless averaged 10.8 in a spare role. He resides in Natick, Mass. . . . the year 'round.

Good Boston teams have always sported an excellent offensive rebounder . . . witness the great years when Tommy Heinsohn and later Bailey Howell patrolled the front court. They were there tipping in missed shots . . . things perked up with the Green last season when they acquired a burly guy named Paul Silas from the Phoenix Suns . . . he arrived in Boston riding one of his finest years as a professional with the Phoenix club . . . he made his first All Star Game . . . was named to the Second All League Defensive team . . . he scored a career high of 1,403 ppg — a 17.5 average . . . the loss of 30 lbs. made all this possible, Paul contends . . . he and his wife, Caroline, both joined the Weight Watchers . . . to achieve the new figure . . . Paul dropped to 13.3 ppg this season, but grabbed 1,039 rebounds, second to Dave Cowens on the team, making him ninth in the N.B.A. lists . . . his play-off record was equally strong on the boards . . . his scoring fell off to 9.6 . . . his seasonal high, 26 points, were scored at Baltimore March 4 . . . two years ago he hit a career high of 31 as a member of the Suns.

The Silas family lived in Reading, Mass. at the start of last year and then built a permanent home in Needham, Mass. . . . an All American at Creighton, where he established six school records, he was the St. Louis Hawks second choice in 1964. He went to Phoenix from the Atlanta Hawks in exchange for Gary Gregor following the 1968-69 season. The Celtics picked him up for Charlie Scott . . . when Boston acquired Paul, they not only picked up a good man, they got a big load off their backs . . . against the Celts in his year at Phoenix, Silas scored 106 points in five games and whipped 61 rebounds from the boards.

From the "worst shooter in the N.B.A." to a 13.1 ppg average shows what hard work and determination can do for a player and that's the history of Donald "The Duck" Chaney, about to start his 6th season with the Celtics . . . the cold facts show that in his first four years in the League, Don averaged 4.0 (20 games), 5.0 (63 games), 11.5 (81 games) and 11.9 (79 games). Last season he continued his climb in 79 games to 13.1. His career high (32 points) was registered on February 28, 1973 against Golden State in Boston . . . in 44 minutes he hit 8 for 15 from the floor and 16 of 17 from the line . . . his best in the play-offs came in the final game (6th) with Atlanta when he banged home 18 points in 21 minutes of chasing Pete Maravich about the floor in Atlanta . . . when you project Chaney on 48 minutes, he averages 20.0 per game . . . not bad for a guy who threw more air balls than anyone in the game in his first two seasons with the club . . . there never was any doubt about his defensive ability as a collegian nor as a professional . . . he's the guy that matches up with the Jerry Wests, the Oscar Robertsons, the Pete Maraviches and the Walt Fraziers . . . nowadays he fills the lanes beautifully on the fast break and lays the ball in like a dream . . . at 6 ft. 5 in. with a tremendous wing spread, he plants himself under the offensive hoop and is the best backcourt player in the N.B.A. on grabbing a rebound and firing it back up and generally in . . . from a sorry sight as a freshman, Chaney has made himself a reliable outside shooter, thanks to (1.) Coach Tommy Heinsohn and (2.) hard work. Heinsohn taught him the correct way to shoot — something about which he hadn't the slightest idea when he made the Boston scene — and talked to him of super stardom. Hard work is something Don did on his own. He shot 17 hours a day during the summer. Now opponents no longer give him the open shot . . . Red Auerbach always insisted that a player should be paid on his contribution to a team and not on statistics . . . Chaney is Red's kind of ball player!

The Chaneys spend the summer months in Houston, but this past year he purchased a home in Peabody, Mass. . . . Jackie and Don are the proud parents of two children — Donna, 1 year and Mike, 4.

It was a disappointing season for Steve Kuberski last year . . . he came off an inspiring play-off in 1972 and expected great things . . . it didn't work out that way . . . the three-year veteran didn't play enough to get really rollin'. In the first place, the Celtics picked up Paul Silas — a sure starter in a corner and then there was Capt. Johnny Havlicek at the other forward . . . that left Steve with short playing time . . . both Havlicek and Paul played a lot of time. Steve filled in and did well, but he saw only 762 minutes of game action . . . this in contrast to his sophomore year 1,867 and junior season 1,128 . . . he's a 6 ft. 8 in. rugged player and he became the surprise hero of the 1971-72 play-offs, with fine shooting, rough rebounding and a hardnosed defensive performance . . . he came into his own against Atlanta and even this year it carried over against the Hawks . . . they play a physical type of game and that's the way Kuberski likes it . . . his best scoring night last season, however, was registered at Seattle when he caged 19 points in 24 minutes of play . . . he took down seven rebounds that night . . . his career high offensively was in 1971 when he poured 27 points . . . with both Havlicek and Silas back, Kuberski may be in for another short-time season. Hondo, however, is not likely to play 48 this year and Steve can cash in on John's age problem . . . he was a 20-plus scorer in college — at both the University of Illinois and Bradley and a double digit rebounder . . . he still had a year to go at Bradley when he became eligible for professional play. Don Nelson, native of nearby Rock Island, convinced Steve to sign with Boston . . . he and his wife, Diane, and son Jason (2 years) reside in Woburn, Mass. . . . year around. During the summer, Steve appears at numerous basketball camps as a guest lecturer.

HANK FINKEL

Born — April 20, 1942
Birthplace — Union City, New Jersey

College — Dayton '66
Height — Seven feet
Weight — 245 pounds

The hardest working guy on the Celtics — Hank Finkel, is starting his eighth year in the N.B.A., his fifth with the Celtics . . . has turned it around in Boston . . . he took Bill Russell's place in the Boston pivot and didn't impress the local fans with his ability . . . as Dave Cowens became the team's center, Finkel found his position in life . . . as a relief for the often foul-burdened Cowens, Hank stepped in and held the fort . . . on many occasions, he broke the game open with his outside shooting, and his blocking out under the boards . . . he became a hero to Bostonians in the final play-off game in 1972 when he took over with the issue in doubt. Cowens had five fouls, the Green's lead was reduced to two and twenty minutes left. At the end of three, it was Boston by five and growing. Four long bombs by High Henry in the tight part of the game broke it open . . . if the fans could have lifted him, Finkel would have been carried off on their shoulders Hank thinks he can do things that help the team win . . . he can set picks, block out under the boards and always be ready physically . . . if he has to, he can throw the bomb . . . with this in mind, Finkel is the first to show up, and last to leave in practice sessions . . . he came to Boston in 1969 from San Diego for a draft pick and cash. While in college at Dayton, Hank was three times second team All American and led his college team to the quarter finals of the N.C.A.A. during his junior and senior years. Last season, Finkel played less than he ever did with the Celts. Mainly because Cowens didn't foul out as much. His career high was scored with San Diego against Los Angeles in the 1967 campaign when he caged 42 points.

Hank and his wife, Kathy, with two children live now in Melrose, Mass., year round.

Born — November 30, 1950

College — U.S.C. '72
Height — Six feet, four inches
Weight — 185 pounds

Paul Westphal, the quiet rookie, promises to become the super sophomore. Like other great Celtic stars who spent their freshman years on the bench — Sam Jones, Tom Sanders, K. C. Jones, Westy displayed great promise. He got into just 60 regular season games, 11 play-off tilts. His best offensive gesture — 17 points in 12 minutes against Cleveland October 10th . . . Heinsohn tested the kid in some important games — even starting him in the play-offs once — he responded like a veteran. His most trying moments came on the West Coast when the team made its first visit of the season to his old stamping grounds . . . he took on Jerry West for eight minutes, scored well himself and had Jerry well under his average. A projection of Westphal for the full 48 — 24.8 . . . in the fourth game of the Atlanta play-off series, he caged 12 points — his high. In the second game of the same series, Paul hit 10 . . . Westphal came to the N.B.A. with unusual confidence. A three-year veteran at the University of Southern California, he was named to several all American teams and climaxed his collegian career by breaking Bill Sharman's old scoring mark at the school . . . Aside from playing a tough college schedule, Paul spent the summers playing against N.B.A. players and the stars of U.C.L.A. . . . "I felt all along that I could play in the N.B.A. I've been watching the games since I was a freshman at Aviation High in Redondo Beach." The knee that Paul injured as a senior at U.S.C. and had operated on, was of some concern to the Green at training camp last year . . . he showed no signs of the injury during the past year . . . as a junior he led the Trojans to a 24-2 record — the best in the school's history — an 87-86 victory over U.C.L.A. highlighting the year.

He married the former Cindy Paden prior to reporting to the Celtics rookie camp last year. You just don't pass over Cindy in one sentence. She's a honey blonde who was Queen of the Bi-Centennial in California. Last year the couple resided in Waltham, while Cindy taught school in Melrose . . . they will live in Framingham this year. Cindy has retired from teaching. Paul expects to wait for at least another ten years before he packs it in.

ART WILLIAMS

Born — September 20, 1939
Birthplace — Bonham, Texas

College — California Poly (Pomona)
Height — Six feet, one inch
Weight — 180 pounds

Born in Texas, brought up in San Diego and matured in Boston is the story on Artie Williams, erstwhile "oldest rookie in the N.B.A." Picked up at the start of the 1970 campaign in exchange for Larry Siegfried, Williams had a tendency to throw the ball away during his first year in Celtic regimentals . . . he seldom heaves it away now . . . despite the "if you have the shot, take it," Celtic rule, Williams enjoys play-making . . . "he's fast and he's a penetrator. I like to play with Artie," is Capt. John Havlicek's comment on Williams . . . he's the perfect guy to come in and get the fast break moving. He can score if the situation calls for it or, if an opponent drops off to stop a penetration, Williams goes to the hoop with the softest floaters in the N.B.A. His career high, November 6th, two years ago against the Trail Blazers when he poured 27 points . . . last year his best regular season game, a 26-minute stint against Baltimore when he pulled the Green from behind with four points, six assists and four rebounds . . . against Atlanta in the play-offs, April 4th in the Omni, he caged 8 points and had nine assists in 26 minutes of floor time . . . Artie didn't break into the N.B.A. until he was 28 years old when he joined the new franchise at San Diego . . . his 22 assists for the Rockets at Phoenix in the 1968-69 season, was tops in the N.B.A. that year . . . the Williams' (Bessye) and two children reside in Mattapan, Mass. since he joined the Celtics . . . he works in the Phys. Ed. department of Boston during the summer and does numerous clinics at the many basketball camps throughout the New England area.

The No. 1 draft choice of the Celtics, Steve Downing, brings impressive college credentials to the team . . . to start off with, he was the M.V.P. in the Big Ten where the game is played with contact . . . in Big Ten competition (14 games) Steve topped the team in scoring and rebounding with 19.9 ppg and grabbed 138 rebounds . . . overall (28 games) he averaged 20.1 ppg and nailed 296 rebounds . . . he was high scorer for the Hoosiers 18 times and 23 times led in rebounding . . . in the final game of the year against Providence, Downing caged 21 points, grabbed 14 rebounds . . . a back injury slowed him as a sophomore and he suffered torn cartilage in his knee as a junior . . . he was solid and sound as a senior . . . as a junior, his 377 caroms was the second highest in school history, topped only by Walt Bellamy's 428 . . . his best scoring night last year came against the University of Illinois when he poured 41 points and got 14 rebounds . . . in the N.C.A.A. Semis, he helped beat Marquette (75-69) with 29 points, 10 rebounds and Kentucky (72-65) with 23 points, 13 rebounds . . . the Hoosiers lost to U.C.L.A. (59-70) but Downing got 26 points against Bill Walton before fouling out. His best skills include fine defensive play in the middle and shot-blocking ability as good as any in the nation . . . as a schoolboy he was All State and All American at Washington H.S. in Indianapolis . . . he was a Phys. Ed. Major in college and is married.

PHIL HANKINSON

Born — July 26, 1951
Birthplace — Augusta, Georgia
High School — Great Neck H.S.
College — Univ. of Pennsylvania '73
Height — Six feet, eight inches
Weight — 195 pounds
Home — Great Neck, N.Y.
Years Pro — None

The No. 2 draft of the Celtics — Phil Hankinson — from the University of Pennsylvania is a dead ringer for the Celts Don Chaney. A quiet, handsome youngster, Phil comes from Great Neck, N.Y. and was called Spider by his Quaker teammates . . . his style of play is what attracted the Celtics to the young man. John Killilea, Head Scout, Tommy Heinsohn and Red Auerbach all took long looks at Hankinson and the trio were impressed . . . on the great Penn. team of 1970-71, as a sophomore, he was the sixth man but managed to score 9.2 a game . . . as a regular in his junior and senior years, he averaged 16.7 and 18.3 respectively . . . he generally grabs around 8 rebounds per game . . . he has the quickness to fill a lane in the Boston fast break and he scores most of his points from outside . . . his shooting from the floor shows 49.9 (Soph.), 53.0 (Junior) and 48.9 (Senior) . . . unlike a lot of Ivy League colleges, Pennsylvania takes on the tough guys, too . . . Phil was twice named to the All Big Five team, made All Ivy League twice and All Eastern once . . . he got All Ivy League Mention as a second-year man . . . According to Red Auerbach, Phil is a New York ball player — knows the game thoroughly — and can easily develop into a fine defensive player . . . he played with Corky Calhoun and Dave Wohl, both of whom made it in the N.B.A. . . . According to George Blaney, now Holy Cross coach, "Hankinson may be the best player of them all" . . . last year he was high scorer in nine different games and top rebounder in 12 games . . . his best effort was against Providence College's Marvin Barnes, whom he held to three baskets, seven points and six rebounds.

As of now Phil is single.

Coach: Tom Heinsohn, Holy Cross '56; Captain: John Havlicek, Ohio State '62; Trainer: Frank Challant, Parsons '68; Equipment Manager: Walter Randall.

JOHN KILLILEA

The appointment of John Killilea as Assistant Coach and Head Scout in 1972 marked a first for the Celtics who had never had anyone hold this position before. A native of Quincy and Boston U. graduate, Killilea began his coaching career in Maine before moving to Silver Lake Regional and then Melrose High Schools in Massachusetts. He compiled one of the finest coaching records in the stage winning 314 games while losing 90, winning four Tech Tournaments and one State Championship. He joined the Celtics in 1971 as chief scout.

FRANK CHALLANT

The Celtics trainer came highly recommended by his predecessor, Joe DeLauri, following a short but impressive stint with the New England Patriots. A native of Swampscott, Challant, 26, was graduated from Swampscott High, attended Springfield College, received his degree from Parsons College, Iowa and served as head trainer at Chelmsford High School before joining the Patriots.

DR. THOMAS F. SILVA

One of the happiest things about 1968 for the Celtics was the clubs association with Dr. Thomas Silva, noted Brookline surgeon as team physician. Dr. Silva was awarded a B.S. degree from Tufts College, a D.M.D. from Tufts Dental School and an M.D. from Boston University Medical School. He is a member of the American College of Surgeons and is certified by the American Board of Surgery. He is one of the Surgical Faculty of the Boston University School of Medicine and the surgical staffs of 10 greater Boston hospitals. He has served as team physician for Boston University football and hockey teams. He is married and the father of six children.

BOSTON CELTICS on TELEVISION and RADIO

JOHNNY MOST

The garrulous voice of the Boston Celtics has become as strong a fixture in the Celtics world as any player. Acclaimed as one of the quickest voices in the nation with an uncanny ability to keep up with the ball, John is also one of the most passionately dedicated Celtics backers in town. John formerly covered the New York Knickerbockers, Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Football Giants before joining the Celtics in 1953. In addition to his basketball duties, John has done a number of sports shows on radio and television. Now with a radio-television simulcast, Most enters a new era in a career of 20-plus years. In 1973 the Celtics celebrated Johnny Most Night on his 20th Anniversary.

LEN BERMAN

The newest member of the Celtics broadcast team, Len Berman brings a solid basketball background to his new position with the Celtics and with WBZ-TV. Berman joined the station last summer as sports anchor man replacing former Celtic voice Dick Stockton, following a stint as co-anchorman at WLWD-TV in Dayton, Ohio. A native of Queens, N.Y., Berman began his career at Syracuse University where he was basketball play-by-play commentator.

All 82 Celtics regular season plus playoff games will be broadcast on WBZ AM and FM. The following games will be televised by WBZ-TV, Channel 4.

Red Auerbach speaks out on Rodman . . .

"I had to 'buy' the place before I agreed to sell it!"

I'm beginning my third season as radio-tv spokesman for Rodman of Foxboro. And when I say I had to "buy" Rodman first, I mean I had to believe in the Rodman way of doing business. The people at Rodman treat each customer like a friend. Whether a Rodman car owner, a rental customer, or one of a happy handful of Enstrom F28-A helicopter owners, the Rodman customer is King! It's because the Rodman people respect their customers that they have so many of them-about 10,000. And it's why I say, "Once a Rodman customer, always a Rodman customer." All right, maybe I'm stretching a point, but fact is, 80% of all Rodman customers do become repeaters.

As for me, I joined the ranks of "happy Rodman friends" two years ago. That's when I became a believer.

And I've been talking about Rodman ever since.
